

1. What is Data?

Data is the information which is stored by a computer. This data can be of any form i.e., text documents, images, audios, videos etc. This data can be processed from one computer to another computer or devices using internet.

2. How are Data generating?

Data generating is the process of creating data from the sampled collected data. It is done once the data collection process is completed. It analysis the collected data and creates the processed data from it.

3. What is Big Data?

Big data consists of a vast data with a voluminous storage. This collected from different data sources which is comparatively larger than the traditional data processing softwares. This vast data can be used in order to access for different purpose that could solve business problems.